Creating My Portfolio and Resume
Weekly Report 5- 9/17 to 9/23

As this week began, a resume was the first thing that needed to be completed. My rough draft, although looked nice, was very simple and did not have very much information that would have been helpful. So by adding features, like an objective and more information about clubs and classes, it allowed me to create a resume that not only was more professional, but also gave me the ability to potentially inform professionals and mentors about my interests and achievements.

Along with this, I started to create a digital portfolio. Within this, a website that reflected architecture and my personal style was created. From this website, I will be able to use it to show professionals, along with my resume, so that they can develop a better understanding of me and also follow along as a report about my weeks throughout my journey in ISM. While continuing to create this website, the problem of having well thought out paragraphs and tabs keeps occurring, where I cannot seem to figure out whether certain things are either necessary or not. To overcome this, a lot of peer editing and advice from my classmates has been taken into consideration.

Overall, for next week, I would like to have completed my digital portfolio as well as have it be looked over by multiple people in order to make sure it is ready for publication.
